I am writing to express my sympathy for your failure in applying for the school's TV hostess. Although it shocked me that a talented speaker like you failed the interview, I still have faith in you. Remember, there is no stigma in failures. It's okay to be defeated by obstacles as long as you keep rebounding to surmount it. I am crossing my fingers for your mental well-being and success next time. I hope you can recover from your frustration and regain your self-esteem. There is no doubt that you'll eventually ~~prevail~~ succeed to overcome obstacles.

As one who has encountered similar difficulties, I have a few suggestions for you based on my in-person experience. I suggest that you should ~~watching~~ more renowned talkshows and mimic the intonations of famous hostesses. By imitating successful hostesses like Jimmy Fallon and Stephen A., you will surely get more natural at presenting information and throwing jokes to the audience. If I were you, I'd also practise in front of a mirror. Body language's value is definitely underrated.

I hope that by the time this letter reaches you, you'll feel much better. May the odds be ever in your favor.
